Recently, a groom from lower caste was thrashed by upper caste people because he rode a horse in his wedding. He stated that even though he can afford modern equipments like tractor for agriculture, he cannot get it out of fear of higher-caste people. They can not reach their full potential because of higher-class mind-set.

To examine what triggers what in both crises is like answering what came first, chicken or egg? We need to understand that both are fatal and need to stop.

Nation is never a static concept but an ever building process, so to make any nation great, continuous work is crucial. To start with, remember what Gandhi said- "There is enough on earth for everyone's need but not for everyone's greed". Modifying path by keeping in mind our duties towards environment will help. Behaviour change is another approach. Upholding Constitutional morality over public morality will stop episodes like Hyderabad encounter.

We need economic and social advancement with growth in health, education, skill development, employment, social justice, human rights and democracy. Stopping normalisation of everyday crime is critical. If we exhibit 'all hands on deck approach', we do not require superman to rescue us.

As a nation, we have to invest in long-term solutions, in a sustainable path of life, we need freedom within India. Understanding that all religions have one reality, that is dignity of common man, is needed. It is a need of the hour to formulate society which questions its own apathy. We can not think of it as a choice between economic development or environment safety, between defence or social schemes. We need middle way; we need holistic and multi-stakeholder approach. As Prime Minister Modi said, "While achieving goals self-evaluate whether human element within yourself is getting frustrated? Are we not moving away from our human qualities"?

Only then survival of India is possible.
